A WEEK OF THE WAR

Since the occupation of Sousse by the British Eighth Army and the fall of Kairouan to a combined Allied force, the battle for Tunisia has moved out of the cat-and-mouse phase into a phase of siege. The race up the coast, which began on April 6 when the British drove Rommel out of his Mareth Line defenses, has ended, and Rommel and Von Arnim are now entrenched in the mountain-clad triangle of Tunis-Bizerte.

Storming these defenses is the immediate job facing the Allies in Tunisia, and it is not likely to be an easy one. The so-called Enfidaville Line, which runs, roughly, from Enfidaville on the east coast west to the mountain range (the Grand Dorsal) and then north to the Mediterranean coast, is a mountainous one, with natural defenses that Allied tanks and armored divisions will find hard to penetrate. Along this line the full-scale concerted assault. Already some important hill positions have been taken from the Axis.

Number of Axis Troops
From the start of the attack on the Mareth Line to the middle of last week, the Allied forces in Tunisia have taken more than 30,000 Axis prisoners, over 20,000 of these captured by the British Eighth Army alone. Secretary of War Stimson said that the Axis armies besieged in the Tunis-Bizerte corner still number between 175,000 and 200,000, and there is no evidence that they are planning a major evacuation.

Air Forces Active
American and British air forces continue their bombing attacks on enemy airfields in Tunisia, Sardinia and Italy. Wednesday's Flying Fortress raids brought down 19 enemy fighter planes without loss, and wrecked or badly damaged many more planes parked on the three airfields. Thousands of bombs were dumped on hangars and buildings, and the damage caused was extensive.

The day Sousse fell—Monday, April 12—Allied headquarters announced that over 250 Axis planes, have been shot down during the campaign in this theater. This figure includes planes brought down by Allied anti-aircraft gunners as well as those destroyed in combat by the Northwest African Air forces.

Japanese Build Air Strength
A communique from General MacArthur's headquarters said that Allied victories, such as the victory over the 100-plane Japanese force that raided Port Moresby last week, have checked the enemy's developing air offensive. The communique described the attack on Port Moresby as a "complete defeat" for the Japanese, although the largest blow ever aimed at this Allied-held New Guinea base.

The latest Japanese aerial assault, launched with upwards of 100 planes against Milne Bay at the eastern tip of New Guinea, cost the enemy another 30 planes. According to Lt. Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey, the Japanese are gambling for mastery of the skies in this area. According to Secretary of the Navy Knox, these raids indicate a step-up of Jap air activity but not necessarily a large-scale drive. Secretary of War Stimson admitted the Japanese have recently become more aggressive, but said Allied air forces have remained qualitatively superior.

Mr. and Mrs. William Zintl spent a few days at their home in town this week. Mr. Zintl expects to enter the U. S. Army soon.

Mrs. Winfield Howe and Mrs. Lennie Howe have returned to their home on the West Bethel road after spending the winter in the village. Miss Ann Griggs will occupy the apartment they vacated.

MRS. CLARA F. ABBOTT

Mrs. Clara F. Abbott passed away Tuesday, April 20, at the home of her niece, Mrs. C. M. Bennett, where she was visiting for a short time. She was taken very suddenly ill with pneumonia and was not able to be moved home.

She was born in Mason Oct. 27, 1874, and was the daughter of Daniel and Mary (Wheeler) Morrill. She married Charles Abbott of Bethel in Dec., 1893, and to them were born two sons.

Mr. Abbott died while their children were small and she was left alone to maintain a home for her two boys. This she did in her usual quiet way until they grew to manhood. For the past few years she has made her home with her son, Carroll, and family of West Bethel, but has spent part of her time with the younger son, Byron, and family of Portland.

She was a member of the Union Church and Church Aid Society and a regular attendant at services. She was for many years a trustee of the church and a willing and efficient worker. She was also a member of the Cemetery Association, having been treasurer and secretary.

Mrs. Abbott possessed a pleasant genial personality, always willing to lend a helping hand and to give a word of cheer in times of need or trouble. She will be greatly missed in the community.

She is survived by two sons, Carroll of West Bethel and Byron of South Portland; three brothers, Dana Morrill of West Bethel, Ernest of Mason, and Arthur of South Paris; two sisters, Millie Morrill of Mason and Mrs. Alice Watson of Norway; four grandchildren, and several nieces and nephews.

Services will be held from the West Bethel Union Chapel Thursday afternoon with the Rev. Don Elfe officiating. Interment will be at the West Bethel Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert R. Rowe and daughter Margery of Albion were week end guests of Mr. Rowe's mother, Mrs. H. C. Rowe.

SOUTH WOODSTOCK MAN FOUND DEAD IN BROOK

Charles Ryerson, 65 years of age, was found dead in Andrews Brook about 8 o'clock Monday morning. The body was lying in the brook about 100 feet from the I. W. Andrews & Sons casket factory, where he had been employed during the winter.

Death was termed accidental. Mr. Ryerson had been in poor health for some time and it is thought that he was ill and fell while working under the mill.

Born in Sumner April 9, 1878, Mr. Ryerson was the son of Gustavus and Rosetta Heath Ryerson. For many years he was a very efficient telephone operator at West Paris.

Those who survive him are one sister, Mrs. Emma Hollis of Westwood, Mass.; two nieces, Mrs. Elizabeth DeCoster of Westwood, Mass., and Mrs. Etta Chute of Auburn; and two cousins, Frank and Robert Ryerson of Massachusetts.

100% WAR STAMP SALE BETHEL GRAMMAR SCHOOL

The day after Hitler's birthday Bethel Grammar School put over a rousing 100% sale of War Stamps and Bonds.

Interest in the purchase of stamps has been keen ever since Pearl Harbor. Many pupils have regularly set aside a portion of their weekly allowances which otherwise would have been spent for movies, candy, or ice cream. Contests with enthusiastic captains have been held in each room. Since January, the school has been divided into two sides, Flying Fortresses and Liberators, to see which group would hit the more targets.

To celebrate the 100% victory, 6th and 8th grade pupils, each carrying an original poster, marched upstairs, where the 7th and 8th grades joined them in singing "Everybody, Everybody Day." The following is the report by grades: Grade V, $38.30 (30 pupils); Grade VI, $76.40 (32 pupils); Grade VII, $16.80 (13 pupils); Grade VIII, $39.35 (22 pupils); and the total contributions of the two contesting sides: Flying Fortresses, $728.00; Liberators, $529.45.

MISS CATHERINE LYON TO WED BOSTON DOCTOR

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Paysan Lyon announce the engagement of their daughter, Catherine Carter, to Dr. Richard Davis Bush of Boston, Mass., and Washington D. C. Miss Lyon is a graduate of Gould Academy and the Johns Hopkins Hospital School of Nursing.

Dr. Bush is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Vannavar Bush of Washington, D. C. He is a graduate of the Belmont Hills School, Amherst College, and the Johns Hopkins Medical School. At present he is serving an internship at the Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston.

The wedding will take place in midsummer.

JOHN A. KNIGHTS

John A. Knights died suddenly Thursday night, April 15, at Portsmouth, N. H. He was born at Fellsmead, Fla. April 30, 1915, the son of Horace and Mary Ann Knights.

He was employed as welder at the Portsmouth Navy Yard.

He is survived by his wife, Madge Morgan Knights of West Paris; mother, Mary Ann Knights; brother, C. James Knights; a half sister, Mrs. Flora Cole, all of North Woodstock; a half sister Mrs. Mae Collins, and two half brothers, Jay and Fay Knights of Groveton, N. H., several nieces and nephews.

Services were held at the Andrews funeral home at South Woodstock attended by the Rev. Eleanor B. Forbes of West Paris, assisted by a minister from Madison, uncle of Mrs. Knights' interment at West Paris cemetery.

CHARLES D. BEAN

Charles D. Bean died Monday at the home of his son, Robert Bean, in Newry. He was born at Howland Pond, Hanover, June 30, 1863, the son of Peter Y. and Mary Glidden Bean. When one year of age the family moved to Bethel, where he received his education.

On Jan. 25, 1884 he married Miss Ina Mae Bartlett of Newry. After living 10 years in Bethel, where he was employed by the railroad and in farming, they moved to Newry where they lived until returning to Bethel 24 years ago. Since Mrs. Bean's death seven years ago, he has lived here with his children.

Mr. Bean is survived by three children, Robert M. Bean of Newry, Mrs. Lillian Smith of Bethel, and Elmer I. Bean of Portland; a brother, Fred F. Bean of Bethel; 16 grandchildren, 12 great grandchildren, and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services were held at Greenleaf's funeral home Wednesday afternoon, Rev. M. A. Gordon officiating. Burial was at the South Bethel cemetery.

Pvt. Lee Roberts is spending a furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Loring Roberts from Camp Breckenridge, Ky.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

A Non-Partisan Editorial Review of the Events of Each Week, Illustrated

ANTI-INFLATION:

'Hold the Line'

President Roosevelt's "hold the line" anti-inflation order served blunt notice on all special economic groups that competition for higher prices and wages must end, because the resulting conflict would not only result in inflation but "breed disunity when unity is essential."

Banning further wage increases except to correct substandard living conditions virtually freezing employees to their present jobs and extending price controls to all cost-of-living commodities, the President's order centered a four-pronged attack on inflation. The order provided:

1—No further wage increases beyond the Little Steel formula of 15 per cent over rates on January 1, 1942; 2—Immediate ceilings on all commodities affecting the cost of living; 3—No hiring of new employees by employers, except in accordance with War Manpower commission regulations, to prevent employment of workers at higher pay than they received in previous jobs; 4—Stabilization of rates of common carriers and public utilities.

DRAFT:

Classes Reshuffled

As local draft boards speeded the reclassification of registrants, in accordance with new selective service regulations, the fathers of children born before September 14, 1942, found themselves the sole occupants of class 3-A. All other men of draft age were being placed in one of the following classes:

1-A—Subject to immediate induction; 2-A—Deferred because of occupation in activities directly supporting the war effort, or vital to the maintenance of civilian health and welfare; 2-B—Deferred because of occupation in war plants; 2-C or 3-C—Deferred because of essential agricultural work; 3-D—Deferred because their induction would cause extreme hardship to dependents; 4-F—Mentally, morally, or physically unfit for service.

TUNISIA:

Fox in the Open

GEN. BERNARD MONTGOMERY
... outfoxes Rommel.

Rommel's retreating Afrika Korps had been faced by Allied armies on three sides after "The Fox" was uprooted from his El Akarit positions and chased into the open plains of Tunisia well north of Gabes.

The seriousness of the crisis for the Axis was reflected in Italian communiques which admitted that Italo-German forces were being steadily overpowered along the entire Tunisian front.

The long-hoped for junction of American and British forces had intensified Rommel's plight, for now General Montgomery's British Eighth army was not only pressing him from the south, but its advance units now joined directly with General Patton's Second American army corps were menacing his flanks from the east. To the north,

General Anderson's British First army had moved to close off Rommel's movements for a possible union with the Axis forces of Gen. Von Arnim.

In routing Rommel at El Akarit, General Montgomery took the Nazis by surprise with a night attack that blazed its way forward under the screen of 500 cannon and scores of tanks, and reinforced by hundreds of planes overhead. In the first break-through the Eighth army had gathered in 8,000 Axis prisoners.

As the battle picture became clearer, the contributions of General Patton's American forces emerged importantly. Prior to the historic junction with the British Eighth army after piercing the Axis armies' flanks, the Americans had held up most of Rommel's armored forces in the El Guettar region, weakening his defenses and making easier the task of the British at El Akarit.

PACIFIC FRONT:

Air War Continues

Aerial warfare on the north and east extremities of the Pacific battle front provided for weeks the only activity in this theater.

In the north American army bombers escorted by fighters continued their daily assaults on Japanese positions in the Aleutians, bombing Kiska and blasting Attu.

In the east, Dauntless dive bombers and Lightning fighters struck at Vila in the Solomons, setting fire to Jap-held positions. Allied airmen attacked 15 enemy targets along a 1,500-mile stretch of islands and waterways above Australia. These included an attack on a three-ship Jap convoy off New Ireland.

Largest scale action of all occurred near Guadalcanal, where American airmen destroyed 37 out of 98 Jap planes and bombers which attacked U. S. shipping. Americans lost seven of their own planes in the encounter.

RUSSIA:

Quiet on Donets

As reports had persisted that the Germans were moving many fresh divisions to the Russian front for a new offensive, the Red forces took the initiative in the Kharkov area and seized several favorable positions south of Izyum, thus widening the Soviet bridgehead on the south bank of the Donets river.

Following their failure at Izyum, the Germans were reported massing strength in the Balakleyna sector.

A Moscow communique reported that quiet had again descended on the Smolensk front after a lightning Russian thrust that resulted in the capture of several strongly held villages northeast of the Axis stronghold.

Engagements were but a prelude to bigger movements, for both sides were massing their forces for new major actions once the spring-thawed ground became firm again.

BURMA:

'Advance and Retreat'

While "advance and retreat" tactics by the British and Indian forces in Burma's Mayu peninsula were disappointing to the Allied world, military observers pointed out that the British and Indian armies were accomplishing their main objective. This was to occupy the attention of the major Jap armies until it was too late for any attempt at a large scale Nipponese invasion of India.

British communiques reporting on the abandonment of Allied positions near Donbaik indicated that further withdrawals could be expected before the arrival of the monsoon season.

The British had succeeded in stalling Japanese drives on Buthlading, 55 miles northwest of Akyab. But the Japs detoured across the Mayu river, developing a threat against the exposed British northern flank.

EUROPE:

Axis on Alert

The defense of Europe against the forthcoming Allied invasion was increasingly occupying the attention of Axis leaders, reports from the continent indicated. The Germans were said to be undertaking anti-invasion maneuvers in Belgium and Holland. Intelligence reports reaching Allied governments said the German and Italian high commands had met at Brenner pass to discuss the defense of Italy.

U. S. NAVY:

Billions for Building

ADM. ERNEST J. KING
... more battle-wagons for him.

Further evidence of the navy's determination to build itself into unmatched global power was seen in President Roosevelt's request of Congress for a $24,551,070,000 appropriation for the fiscal year 1944—the largest amount ever sought for the nation's sea-fighting forces.

The President asked for $6,230,000,000 for new warships; $1,830,000,000 for maintenance and repair of ships and $3,470,000,000 for guns, ammunition and armament. While only $1,640,000,000 was requested for airplanes, a backlog of about $4,000,000,000 in orders will provide adequate numbers of fighting craft.

The 1944 fiscal year's total compares with $23,630,000,000 appropriated last year for the navy.

FRANCE:

U. S.-Britain Agree

When British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden announced he had invited Secretary of State Cordell Hull to visit London and said he was satisfied there is "complete agreement" between Britain and the United States on the "future policy toward France," he took a long step toward settling the troublesome North African political situation.

Seemingly on the point of settlement, the problem had been intensified once more when the Fighting French took umbrage at Allied Commander Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's request that Gen. Charles De Gaulle delay his projected visit to Algiers for conferences with Gen. Henri Giraud.

Military men had viewed the Eisenhower request as a perfectly logical action. With the battle for Tunisia at its height, the time was not right for political discussion, since the entire time of the French, British and American leaders in North Africa was occupied in winning the campaign.

BLACK MARKETS:

Meat Supply Scarcer

Black markets were blamed by the department of agriculture for the reduced marketing of livestock for slaughter in recent weeks. Also blamed were unusually large death losses and a holding back of gifts for breeding.

In recent weeks, a department report noted, government buying agencies and civilian consumers dependent on federally inspected plants have experienced difficulty in obtaining meat. While the report did not disclose how great a reduction in inspected meat supplies stemmed from the black market operations, it described it as "fairly large."

Meanwhile seven meat packing firms operating in the East and Middle West were indicted by a federal grand jury in Newark, N. J., on charges of conspiracy to violate meat price regulations and meat quota restrictions.

SUPER-FUEL:

For Post-War Cars

The formula for making a super-fuel which can deliver 40 miles to the gallon in postwar automobiles will be available to all gasoline manufacturers as the result of a federal court decree in Newark, N. J. The process had hitherto been the exclusive property of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Thirty-three giant production units now are built or building for turning out the fuel, the Standard company disclosed. At present the product is being used entirely for war purposes.

When the plants return to peacetime fuels, automobile engines will have to be redesigned to use them. The new motors can be smaller and lighter but deliver present horsepower.

KEYNES' PLAN:

To Sidetrack Gold

Following closely on the heels of the United States treasury's proposal for a $5,000,000,000 postwar international stabilization plan came Lord Keynes' proposal for a world credit institution "designed to expand world trade and serve as a genuine organ of truly international government."

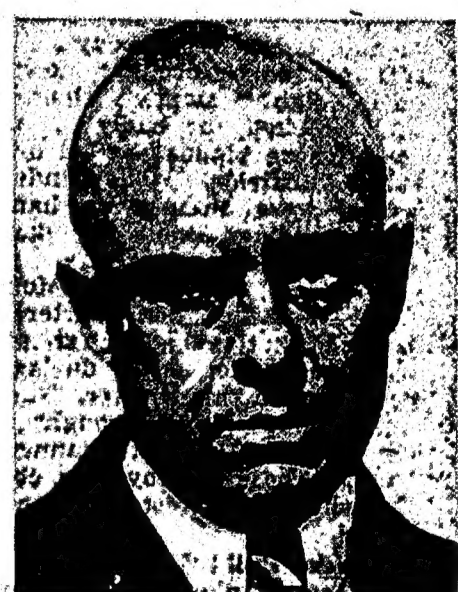

Unlike the American plan, the British fiscal expert's program would subordinate gold as the postwar international medium of exchange. The announcement of Keynes' proposal made in a British white paper said "the purpose of the clearing union is to supplant gold as a governing factor, but not displace it."

Financial observers viewed the Keynes' plan as a trial balloon. Their idea was that a compromise between the American and British viewpoints would be ultimately arrived at.

Under the Keynes' plan the clearing union would have executive offices in New York and London. It would operate as a bank of nations, with creditor nations allowing their balances to accumulate as deposits, while the union would lend these deposits for short periods to debtor nations, just as a commercial bank operates.

35 BILLION:

U. S. Must Recapture

... 'spending power a peril.'

The government will have to recapture $35,000,000,000 in surplus spending power if present price and wage controls are to combat inflation effectively, Chester C. Davis, food administrator declared.

A banker as well as an agricultural leader, Mr. Davis recommended higher federal taxes and sharply increased investments in war bonds to relieve the strain of "too much purchasing power" on a declining supply of consumer goods, including food and other living items.

"This is no 10 per cent war," he declared.

BLOCK-BUSTERS:

Work Well Done

The penetrating eyes of British reconnaissance cameras confirmed reports of RAF bomber pilots that "block-busters" have done their work well in laying waste industrial areas of Berlin.

Photographs taken after one recent raid disclosed that 30 important war factories had been destroyed or damaged. The devastation was concentrated mostly in areas south and southwest of the center of Hitler's capital, a report by the air ministry disclosed.

Railway repair shops, freight yards, the Tempelhof airfield and factories producing wireless sets, optical precision instruments, telephone equipment, fire control apparatus and chemical plants were included in the industrial installations that suffered heavy damage from the raids.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

NEW YORK: Secretary of Navy Frank Knox announced that salvage operations were progressing rapidly on the 83,000-ton former French liner Normandie, now named the Lafayette, which burned and capsized at her pier here on February 9, 1942. He indicated that the vessel should be righted by midsummer. The giant liner is being refitted for naval service.

SAN FRANCISCO: In practical furtherance of her determination to "help my brothers' shipmates," Miss Genevieve Sullivan, sister of the five Sullivan boys lost in the sinking of the cruiser Juneau has become a member of the naval women's reserve. She is at present on a tour of war plants and navy yards before reporting for active duty. A navy statement indicated that she would probably go to the WAVES training school at Hunter college in New York city. Miss Sullivan helped christen a new destroyer named in honor of her brothers.

LONDON: A shipment of 10,000 American alarm clocks will be used to replace those worn out in Britain since the war started. It was announced by Hugh Dalton, president of the board of trade, in a statement to the house of commons after a member complained that coal miners were having a hard time waking up for their 2 a. m. shifts in British and Welsh collieries.

MANCHESTER: The little man who pays the taxes will probably have to dig deeper into his pockets to find the money to help pay for new British taxes payable under the new United Kingdom budget. It was indicated by a statement made here by Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer. Britain's total expenditures last year were 22,400,000,000 pounds. The government raised 50 per cent of this sum from revenue, and borrowed the remainder—except for a 900,000-pound gift from Canada. Higher taxes on amusements loom, Wood said.

THE STORY SO FAR: Arriving simultaneously at the King Cole Ranch, Ann Lee and Cole Cody discovered Old Early Bill Cole had made two identical wills, leaving them all his money and the Ranch. Rance Waldron, established at the Ranch since Old Bill's death from a mysterious gun-shot wound, questioned the sanity of Old Bill and the legality of the wills. Late that evening, Ann's Aunt Jennifer stole out and watched Rance help a strange lurking man out of the house. She awakened Cole and told him what had happened. Together with Cal, the foreman, he trailed the fleeing horsemen to a deserted cabin. Aunt Jennifer, searching Rance's possessions, heard footsteps. Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER XIII

For one stricken instant the adventuresome Aunt Jennifer felt as though she were paralyzed. The next second she leapt and ran like a frightened deer; her racing footsteps sounded extraordinarily loud in her own ears as she dashed through Waldron's room toward the corridor. Then an even louder sound struck her ears, a man in the yard running faster than she could run, making for the outside door of Tom Gough's room. She gained the door she was heading for and heard the other door snapped open, and heard a man's heavy boots come pounding on.

She fled faster than ever, carrying her lamp in one hand, her letter in the other. The lamp chimney was shaken off and crashed to the floor, making a noise, it seemed to her, loud enough to wake the dead, but the flame, giving out more smoke than light, still burned on and showed her dimly the way she must go, to gain her own room. She glanced back and saw the man speeding after her; it was too dark back there for her to make him out clearly, but she knew it must be Rance Waldron, and she could imagine his hard hands choking her to death.

By about three yards she won the race. But by the time she could slip into Ann Lee's room and get her key into the lock, he was at her door. By the fraction of a second she shot the bolt before his hand touched the knob.

Then she sped through Ann Lee's room and to the door that gave upon the corridor, and as she heard him coming there, too, she got that door locked.

There was a heavy silence, then Ann Lee's sleepy voice asking, "Is that you, Auntie? What are you doing?"

Then Rance Waldron's voice spoke up, saying curtly yet not over loud, "Miss Edwards, I think you had better let me come in. Or, if you like, you might step out here and give me a word of explanation."

"Not tonight, Mr. Waldron, thank you," said Aunt Jennifer with creditable calmness.

Ann Lee sat up in bed.

"What is it?" she whispered.

"What has happened?"

Again Rance Waldron spoke, more sternly this time.

"Miss Edwards, I won't stand for this sort of thing. You come out here and give me a good explanation or I'll smash your door down and come in."

Aunt Jennifer told her pat little lie then.

"I still have Cal Roundtree's gun, Mr. Waldron," she said quietly.

"Stick your ugly mug in here and I'll shoot it off."

"I'll bust your door down, I tell you," said Waldron. "I know you haven't any gun. Cody pitched it out into the patio and I saw Roundtree pick it up and holster it and carry it off with him. Going to open up?"

"No. Not on your life. And if you try it, I'll yell my head off, and I've got a voice that'll call the hogs home a mile; and the Cole Cody you mention will be here like a shot and will work on you the way he did this morning, only I'll bet my bustle he'll do a better and more lasting job this time."

"That's something to think about," said Waldron, and sounded reasonable and thoughtful. Then he fell silent. A moment later she could hear his footsteps, moving away.

By now Ann Lee was thoroughly frightened. She was sitting up, the bed covers clutched up to her throat as though for protection.

"He won't come back, I'm sure of it," said Aunt Jennifer. "Yet she wasn't sure, and he did come back."

That was only after he had pondered a moment, after he had returned to his room and Tom Gough's. He saw signs of the invasion; he marked the rug turned back showing the stain on the floor boards, he even saw the telltale spot on the grayish-white blanket. He looked things over in his own room—his papers had been tampered with—and the letter from Bucktooth Jenkins to old Early Bill was gone.

So Rance Waldron returned promptly to Jennifer Edwards' room. There was grim determination in his voice as he said,

"I am going to shoot the lock off your door—or I'll go get an ax. You had better open up. As for calling that Cody hombre, it's no use. I've been to his room and he's not there. The chances are he's no nearer than Bald Eagle."

Ann Lee whispered to her aunt, "That isn't true!" But Aunt Jennifer nodded and drew down the corners of her mouth.

"Only it is true. I knew he had gone out and I knew he hadn't come back. It's likely he's down at the men's quarters by now, chinning with Cal Roundtree. But if we yelled our heads off they wouldn't hear; that's why Cal left you a gun this morning, to signal him with. Darn it, I wish we had that gun now! Well, anyhow, I've got all the keys I know about in this place, and it'll take a lot of ax work to batter one of these doors down."

"Well, what's the answer?" demanded Waldron. "I can't give you all night, you know, to make up your minds."

Ann Lee put her lips close to Aunt Jennifer's ear.

"There are windows!" she whispered eagerly. "We can slip through while he's battering at our door, and scout like anything down to where Cal Roundtree is!"

Aunt Jennifer whispered back,

"Go take a good look at the windows, Goosey. This is a regular old Spanish house; every one of these windows has iron bars like a jail; if you haven't noticed, I have."

"I'll give you about two minutes more to think it over," said Waldron. "That's because if I go shooting your lock off, I'm apt to wake that nosy Roundtree. I'll go to the kitchen and get a hand-ax; there's one by the wood box. I can handle that so he won't hear a sound. You've got until I get back to do your thinking. And I'll manage to keep an eye on your door so that you don't sneak out on me."

They listened for his departing footsteps and didn't hear a sound. So they quite naturally decided that he was still standing before their door, trying to trick them into sticking their noses out when he'd be ready to pounce on them. But he had tricked them in another way. What he had actually done was remove his boots, set them down gently and hurry in his socked feet to the kitchen, get the hand-ax and return. The next thing they heard was his voice, at once angry and mocking.

"Fooled you that time, my pretty ladies," he jeered at them. "I pulled my boots off and made the trip, and here I am back with the ax. You had your chance to run, but it's gone now. Listen to this."

The hand-ax crashed into the solid oak of the door.

"Open up now, and all I'll do is make you give me back something you stole from my room. Get pig-headed about it, and I won't let you off so easy. I'm willing to be reasonable about the whole thing, but nobody is going to burglarize my room and get away with it."

The ax crashed into the wood the second time.

"What's the answer?" he demanded.

A voice, cool and impersonal, spoke out of the darkness, for it was dark where Rance Waldron stood; he had left his lamp in his room, making his way by striking an occasional match. The voice, cool and deliberate as it was, sounded like that of a man whom it would be just as well not to antagonize, the voice of Cole Cody, just now arrived in silence. The words were, merely,

"What's going on here?"

The answer came quickly enough.

"Oh, Cole! God sent you to us! That horrid Rance Waldron is trying to break our door down!"

"I can't see you, Waldron," said Cody, his tone as steady and deliberate as before. "From your ax work I can guess pretty close where you are, though. Want to shoot it out in the dark? Or stick your tail between your legs and get out of here?"

Rance Waldron took his time in deciding how to answer.

"Shooting it out in the dark, Cody," he said after due thought, "is sheer luck. I haven't been over lucky of late; if it's the same with you I'd rather take you on by daylight."

"Suits me fine," said Cody.

Rance Waldron dropped his ax. His gun was in his hand as he said, "All right; I'm taking your word for it," and started back down the corridor to his room.

Then Bill Cole Cody stepped along through the darkness toward the rooms where Ann Lee and her aunt were imprisoned. He, like Waldron before him, struck a match or two. Arrived at his destination, he said, "Will you ladies open up to me? It's in the cards, I think, that I have a word with you."

It was Ann Lee's swift hand that unlocked the door; Cody, his gun still in his hand, since he trusted Rance Waldron in nothing, made no move to cross the threshold. His eyes, smoldering under his dark brows, took in all the loveliness of the trim little figure before him, gave no hint of his admiration, passed on to Aunt Jennifer.

"Do you care to tell me what the ruckus was all about?" he asked. "It might be a good idea." Speaking pointedly to Jennifer, he added:

"Want to shoot it out in the dark? Or get out of here?"

Rance Waldron took his time in deciding how to answer.

"Shooting it out in the dark, Cody," he said after due thought, "is

"You were right in what you told me a while ago. Cal Roundtree and I have found out a thing or two."

"Will you step in, Mr. Cody?" asked Aunt Jennifer. "You're right welcome."

"I'd be glad to do so, ma'am," said Cody politely, and stepped briskly into Ann Lee's room.

Aunt Jennifer closed and locked the door and wasted no further time giving Cole Cody, with Ann Lee all ears to take it in, her adventure of the night. She even handed the Jenkins letter to Cody who read it and then stood there frowning at it.

"I don't know what to do about it all," he said at last. "This letter found in his room, and the fact of his having hid a wounded man in his room all day, comes pretty close to pinning Mr. Rance Waldron's ears back. He—"

"A man hid in the house all day!" gasped Ann Lee. "A wounded man? Tell me about it!"

"It's my notion," said Aunt Jennifer tartly, "and I reckon it's Cole Cody's notion, too, that Rance Waldron and the man he's been hiding, are the two that held the stage up yesterday. Right, Cole?"

Cody nodded.

"Right, Aunt Jennifer. And more than that, Cal Roundtree feels certain that Tom Gough—that's the man Waldron has been hiding out—is the man who shot old Early Bill. If all of us are right in our guesses, we'd better watch our steps. But if we round these two up and hand them over to the sheriff, what can we actually prove against them? We've got scraps of evidence, but it's mostly guesswork at that. Try a man for murder and let the jury find him innocent, and you can't ever haul him into court again. That's the law."

If by some chance he thought that under the circumstances a contrite Ann Lee would break down and plead to be forgiven, he didn't as yet quite know his Ann Lee.

She kept her eyes down and her hands clasped before her, and said meekly,

"Perhaps, Mr. Cody, that the shot you received this morning was sent by Providence to remind one that the spirit of man should never be proud, whereas if you stood out there in the lamp light and Mr. Waldron popped a bullet into you, it would probably only show that you are a bigger fool than he is."

Aunt Jennifer said crisply, "Sit down, Mr. Cody. Seems as though you're always to save our bacon from falling into the fire. Let's have a bit of a war talk, shall we?"

"Auntie!" Ann Lee glared at Miss Edwards, using one of the highest-grade glares she kept in stock. "For this war talk of yours hadn't we better step into your room?"

"This suits me fine," said Cody, and sat down.

"There is merit in my niece's suggestion, Mr. Cody," she said.

"You'll note if you look about you that her room is in some disarray; you see the dear child had already retired and was fast asleep when the fireworks started. My room you'll find as spick and span as I always am. This way, please."

So the three went to the adjoining room and sat down, Ann Lee having returned to her own for the extra chair needed.

"Now for the war talk," said Cody. He reached for tobacco and papers.

"Cal and I figured the whole thing out about as you do. Cal thought it might be a good idea to hang the two of 'em right away, and save bother and fooling around. Maybe he was right. Yet come right down to it we don't really know a thing about either Rance Waldron or Tom Gough. But I can't see much to be done on it tonight. It's kind of late and me, for one, I'm clean tuckered with the shooting-up this young lady handed me and the ride tonight. Suppose we talk this over, getting Cal in on it, in the morning and maybe sending for the Judge and Doc Joe to help give us a steer?"

Ann Lee looked her relief; Aunt Jennifer nodded and said vehemently, "Mr. Cody, I want you to stay near to tonight. I'll sleep with Ann Lee, and you take my room. Won't you?"

Cody rose and bowed; it was a rather graceful bow, thought Ann Lee as she and Aunt Jennifer rose also.

They passed to their room; he stepped after them to the door, closed it gently and said a very quiet,

"Thanks, ma'am. And good night, ladies."

HARD TO DIGEST

In testifying before the Truman Committee which is seeking information on the possible coal strike and the problem of holding down wages, John L. Lewis said: "One way to get cooperation is to give the workers of this country enough to eat...."

With coal miner's wages around $1 an hour, it is hard to digest such a statement. In the best-fed country in the world, the public would not want to see any group of persons going hungry, but it would like to see more proof that a hunger condition exists with men who are being paid $1 or more an hour.

If these men are going hungry, a large percentage of the people of the United States are also going hungry, for it is probable that a majority of them do not make the average monthly wage of the coal miner.

We are face to face with the question of when this nation will call a halt to the constant inflation of war wages. Inequities may remain that need correction in particular cases. But the day of the grand hold-up on threat of strike must end or we might as well kiss any check on living costs goodbye.

SCRAP DRIVE

by Phillips C. Brook

The salvage hunt is all the rage and truly democratic. So browse around your house and barn. And dig around your attic.

And turn in all your surplus junk. Your rubber, tin and metal. The handle to your frying pan. And cover to your kettle.

That old discarded coffee pot. That car that looks a wreck. Might slap a Jap or possibly Smack Hitler in the neck.

For junk makes scrap and scrap makes guns. To fire ammunition. To drive the Axis to the woods. And then we'll all go fishing.

GOULD ACADEMY

G. A. CAMERA CLUB

At a recently held meeting of the Gould Camera Club, the plans for the remainder of the season were explained to the members. The practical photographic course which Mr. Foster has been giving in the Holden Hall darkroom to all members interested, has been finished for the year. The big project at hand now is the staging of a print display of the members' work sometime in May. The club's extra time will now be almost entirely devoted to producing finished work for this show. With last week's demonstration of mounting, Gould's camera enthusiasts were launched into an exhaustive search for the cream of their winter's storage of negatives. During the future weeks these will be transformed into salon prints by the magic of the darkroom, and before long, the all-important date of the exhibit will be set.

THE CHARM SCHOOL

Presented by the Gould Academy Seniors, under the direction of Mr. David Thompson, at the William Bingham Gymnasium on Friday evening, April 16, the three-act comedy, THE CHARM SCHOOL, was a decided hit. Every laugh in the lines found ready response in the audience of some three hundred students and townspeople who crowded the auditorium for this annual Gould excursion into the field of dramatics.

Dealing with the troubles of a young New York insurance salesman who inherits a girls' school, and who tries to teach them, "charm" according to his own ideas and those of his men friends, whom he introduces as members of the faculty, this tried-and-true farce won ready response. Leading roles were deftly and smoothly handled by Norman Jacobs, as the leading man, Carolyn Wight, as the headmistress, poised and capable of meeting any situation. Betty Durgin scored a real hit as the flutty assistant to the headmistress, while Robert Goldermann was properly crusty as the uncle who holds a mortgage on the school. Many laughs were garnered by Howard Sanborn and William Rutter, as brothers out of work, while Ida Clough and Carolyn Gouay as student leaders gave plenty of authentic boarding school atmosphere to the scenes in which they appeared. Dora Gallant, Jacquelin Leader, Maureen Gregg and Harriette Holmes were charming as girls in attendance at the school.

Special mention should be made concerning the set, built by Mr. Foster, and the excellent stage management of Lincoln Colby. Musical numbers between the acts were furnished by the school orchestra, under the direction of Miss Anne Griggs.

GIRLS' DORM PARTY

Last Saturday evening, April 17, the girls of Gehring Hall, Gould Academy, gave a party for the boys of Holden Hall and the faculty. The party began at 7:30 with a tour of the rooms of Gehring Hall. At eight o'clock the party itself, which was conducted as a carnival, began with a number of games and booths. A kiss booth, where candied kisses were given out by Maureen Gregg of Methuen, Mass., was exceedingly popular. Booths with bingo games, grab bag fortune-telling, penny teasing, photographer, and a "Hit Hitler" with bean bags, completed the events of the Carnival.

At nine o'clock there was dancing for all, in charge of Anita Torrey, Bangor, who awarded the prizes for elimination dance and the high scores of the dart game. The winner of the dart game was Charles Rogerson, Brookline, Mass., and the prize for the elimination dance went to Nora Chipman, Poland Spring, and David Hawkins, Concord, Mass. Carnival refreshments were then served, consisting of peanuts, popcorn, pink-lemonade and cookies.

Nancy Ann Richmond of Darlen, Conn., was the chairman of the party, which was enjoyed by about 115 people.

MANY DISPOSING OF THEIR AUTOMOBILES IN THE EAST

Since the value of "A" coupons in the rationing of gasoline has been reduced to one and a half gallons in the eastern section of the country, many owners are disposing of their cars, having come to the conclusion that it is not worth while to pay registration fees, Federal use taxes and personal property taxes on an automobile that to all practical intents and purposes cannot be operated. The

CLARA MORRILL ABBOTT

It has been the blessing of few women to mean as much to her community as has Mrs. Clara Abbott. With her death on Tuesday of this week our towns loses a dignified and beautiful woman and the Spiritual Kingdom is enriched by a gentle and serene soul.

In the small village of West Bethel most of her life has been spent and she has moved as a forthright power and strength among her friends and family and neighbors. As a young wife and mother, as a bereaved widow and as a mature woman she has carried a charm of composure and dignity that has inspired courage and endeared her to all.

On the death of her husband more than 30 years ago she bravely faced the future and the rearing of two small sons. These sons, Byron of South Portland and Carroll of this town, have ever been her pride and comfort and her love has extended to their wives and children in genuine mother fashion.

Of a large family, Mrs. Abbott derived great pleasure in the affection of her many nieces, nephews, in-laws and their families. They all called her Aunt Clara and loved her well. No neighborhood or family gathering was complete without her gracious presence. No wit was keener than hers. No helping hand was more willing when help was needed. Her kindly heart and generous nature embraced all.

With a knowledge of the Faith by which this noble woman lived and died the lines of the favorite hymn may bring reconciliation to bereaved family and mourning friends.

I fear no foe with Thee at hand to bless:
Thou have no weight and tears no bitterness,
Where is death's sting, where, grave, thy victory?
I triumph still, if Thou abide with me.

Hold then Thy cross before my closing eyes;
Shine through the gloom, and point me to the skies:
Heaven's morning breaks, and earth's vain shadows flee:
In life and death, O Lord, abide with me.

cars thus disposed of are being sold at good prices to dealers in sections of the country where "A" gasoline ration coupons are still worth four gallons each.

According to reliable reports, 2500 cars a month are being sold in the Washington area alone, to be shipped to Texas and Louisiana and to cities such as Chicago and Detroit where they are resold to defense workers at inflated prices. In many instances late models are bringing higher prices in the used car market than they cost when new.

The effect of all this will place increased burdens on public transportation reduce vehicle taxes in the eastern section of the country, and bring about a further decline in the receipts of the filling stations.

NO SUGAR BEET RESTRICTIONS

All restrictions regarding the production of sugar beets during 1943 have been removed by Food Administrator Chester C. Davis. One of Mr. Davis' first acts as Food Czar was to rescind an order of the Department of Agriculture reducing the production of sugar beets to 70 per cent of last year's crop.

As is well known the American people consume more sugar than any other nation in the world. About 30 per cent of our sugar is produced within the Continental area of the United States, while the remainder comes from Cuba and our island possessions.

At nine o'clock there was dancing for all, in charge of Anita Torrey, Bangor, who awarded the prizes for elimination dance and the high scores of the dart game. The winner of the dart game was Charles Rogerson, Brookline, Mass., and the prize for the elimination dance went to Nora Chipman, Poland Spring, and David Hawkins, Concord, Mass. To Hasten Victory

No American wants this war to go one minute beyond the time we can bring it to a victorious end. To hasten that victory—to save possibly the lives of millions of our boys on our far flung fronts—it is imperative that every American do his part in the Second War Loan. There is an investment to fit every purse. The most you can do is little enough compared with the sacrifice offered by our boys in service. They give their lives—you lend your money.

LOCKE MILLS

Mrs. Mary Mills, Correspondent

The boys in the armed forces from this town were honored at a very impressive church service at the Union Church Sunday morning.

As Lester Tebbets, Commander of the Jackson-Silver post read the roll call a candle was lit by Miss Jean Tirrell in each boys honor, and a brief prayer by the pastor, Mrs. Abbie Norton was said for him.

Miss Louise Tirrell also assisted in the service. A candle was lit and a prayer said for each of the following: Earl Chaney and Elias Roberts who have been honorably discharged from the army, Major Harry Packard, a former resident of this place who is being held in captivity by the Japanese, Alanson Cummings, a member of the Jackson-Silver Post who is serving in his second World War and is somewhere in the Pacific, and Rodney Hanscom and Archie Stevens who have many friends here and have attended this church.

Legionnaire Herman Cummings led the Lord's prayer in this service and Mrs. Fannie Cummings, State President of the American Legion Auxiliary, spoke briefly. At the close of the service the parents or near relatives were given a small flag for each boy, to be kept 'til they return. There was also a baptismal service at this church Sunday morning.

Schools closed here last Wednesday night until Monday, April 26. The vacation was a little earlier than scheduled on account of bad traveling on Rowe Hill and Howe Hill. The program that should have been given last Friday afternoon by the primary school for the benefit of the Junior Red Cross has been postponed.

Mr. and Mrs. Alden Wilson and children called on Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brown on Grover Hill, Sunday afternoon.

WIVES OF SERVICE MEN TO GET MATERNITY CARE

Maternity care for wives of service men and care for their infants will be available shortly for those who apply to state health departments, according to Katharine F. Lenroot, Chief of the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor. Following appropriation by Congress of $1,200,000 to meet estimated need to July, plans are being rushed to extend such aid to women in the 48 states, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia. The care will be available to the wife or infant of any "back" private, private first class, corporal or sergeant, in the Army and comparable grades in the Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard. It is not available to wives of men in higher ranks.

WEST BETHEL

Rev. Don Fife of Boston spent several days in town this week. There was a regular worship service at Union Chapel Monday evening. At this time the Sunday School children got their awards for regular attendance at Sunday School. Sixteen bibles and seven other gifts were presented. Those pupils attending 28 Sundays between September and Easter earned their bibles, while others not attending as regular were given statues of "Jesus and the Children," and some others small books.

Miss Joyce Abbott, who was called home to help care for her grandmother, Mrs. Clara Abbott, during her recent illness, returned to Brunswick Sunday, to continue her duties at the Brunswick Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Abbott of South Portland have been spending most of the week with Mr. Abbott's mother.

Miss Ruth Walker is at home from the C. M. G. Hospital for a while.

Miss Esther Burris spent the week end at home with her parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Head were in Norway one day last week.

Miss Ruth McInnis is spending the week with Mrs. Clarence Rolfe. Alberta Merrill visited Patty Rolfe over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Tyler and family of East Bethel visited his mother, Mrs. Elden Mills, Sunday.

Roland Kneeland was at home over the week end.

George Gilbert spent Saturday and Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gilbert.

SOUTH WOODSTOCK

The 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Hendrickson was celebrated at Union School house Saturday evening, April 17. Nearly 150 guests were present. After a short program a six tile wedding cake, made by their oldest daughter, Mrs. Eda Watson, was served with ice cream and fancy cookies. A silver collection was presented by Mr. and Mrs. Hendrickson.

Harold Colburn of Portland was a week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Waterhouse.

Mrs. Maud Benson is caring for Mrs. George Tuell at West Paris.

Miss Erma Buck, who was operated on for appendicitis at the Portland Eye and Ear Infirmary last week, is making a satisfactory recovery.

Mrs. Gerald Davis spent Wednesday with Mrs. Arthur Knight at Oxford.

Albert Russ is ill with the flu.

Lester Cole and Beryl Martin have about 15 trees tapped apiece. Not very good sap weather.

School has been closed on account of bad roads.

Not much traffic these days. The roads are not passable between here and Greenwood City at present.

THE 2ND WAR LOAN DRIVE IS ON!

Come on,
Let's WIN this war!

If we should lose the war, life would not be worth living.

"But we won't lose it," you may say.

Listen, brother—in this world nothing's sure, unless you make it so.

This month it's up to us here at home to do our part, and then to us, to make Victory surer—and quicker! To do it, we've got to lend Uncle Sam 13 billion extra dollars.

It isn't easy—but war isn't easy and Victory isn't cheap. It takes money—and more money—to buy planes, ships, tanks, guns and a million other things our boys must have to deliver that final, paralyzing knock-out punch.

And it's a whale of a lot easier for us at home to lend our money than for our boys to fight through the hardships and dangers of deserts, swamps, jungles, ice-fields and sub-infested seas!

There are 7 different types of U. S. Government securities—choose the ones best suited for you!

THEY GIVE THEIR LIVES . . . YOU LEND YOUR MONEY!

THESE BUTTERMILK ALL-BRAN BISCUITS MAKE ANY MEAL!

Any meal becomes a feast with these tempting-texture biscuits! Made with tasty KELLLOG'S ALL-BRAN, they'll make a hit with everyone!

All-Bran Buttermilk Biscuits

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup Kellogg's All-Bran
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup buttermilk
 $1\frac{1}{2}$ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
 $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon soda
 $\frac{1}{2}$ cup shortening

Soak All-Bran in buttermilk. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and soda together. Cut in shortening until mixture is like coarse corn-meal. Add soaked All-Bran; stir until dough follows fork around bowl. Turn onto floured board, knead lightly a few seconds, roll or pat to $\frac{1}{4}$ inch thickness and cut with floured cutter. Bake on lightly greased pan in hot oven (450° F.), about 12 minutes.

NOTE: Sweet Milk Recipe: If sweet milk is used instead of buttermilk, omit soda and increase baking powder to 3 teaspoons.

FIRST-AID to the AILING HOUSE

by Roger B. Whitman

Roger B. Whitman—WNU Features.

You may not be able to replace worn or broken household equipment. This is war. Government priorities come first. So take care of what you have . . . as well as you possibly can. This column by the homeowner's friend tells you how.

CELLAR CLOTHES CLOSET

Question: Last fall I built a cedar closet in our cellar to keep clothes protected from moths. Now I find the clothes kept there have become moldy. Our cellar is a little damp, but the walls of the closet are at least five inches away from the concrete walls and floor. How can I protect the clothes and get rid of the mold?

Answer: You possibly might be able to do a moistureproof job on the clothes closet by insulating all surfaces with insulation board; then cover all exterior surfaces with heavy asphalt paint. But my advice is to give up the idea of storing clothing in the damp cellar. You would find it much more practical to lay in several garment bags, the kind with zippers, if you still can get them, and store your garments upstairs. First, of course, all clothing should be cleaned thoroughly and the bags provided with plenty of "paradi" (moth flakes) and moth balls.

Furnace Smokes
Question: Our furnace has been smoking for the last two or three years when the door is left open. The damper that is supposed to control that part does not seem to function. Have had it gone over by furnace men, but they do not seem to be able to cure the trouble. It draws well when the door is closed, and heats properly. What is the trouble?
Answer: When a furnace is in operation all doors should be closed. When draft is necessary the damper in the asphalt door should be opened, but the door itself should remain closed. If the damper does not operate properly it may need replacement. Ask the maker of your furnace to send you a copy of his instructions on the proper operation of the unit.

Painting Brick

Question: I plan on painting a cottage built of common brick, over which there is a coating of cement. This cement has been painted several times. However, some of the paint has peeled off in spots. Some of the cement has cracked and fallen off, which since has been repatched. What sort of paint would be best to use on this cottage?
Answer: Since the walls presumably have been painted with an oil paint, use a good quality outside house paint. Or if your local paint dealer has a good brand of oil base brick and cement coating you could use that. If the old paint has peeled badly, it may be necessary to remove it first before repainting.

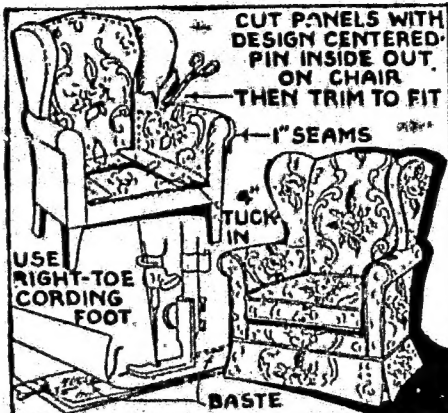

Roots In Sewer

Question: After having my sewer pipe "rodded" out, the workman informed me that the pipe was matted with tree roots and would require digging up. An oil treatment was suggested. What do you advise?
Answer: A pound or two of copper sulphate, dissolved in a pair of warm water, then poured down the sewer may be more effective than oil. Of course, if the pipe is matted badly with roots, it may be necessary to remove them first; then use the chemical to prevent further growth. If you can locate a plumber who has a root-removing machine, with rotary knives, the job can be done without digging up the pipe.

Insulation

Question: Is it possible for a layman to insulate a two-story four-family brick house? If so, what materials are needed?
Answer: If the house has an attic space under a peak roof, insulation can be put into this space by a layman. But if the roof is flat a professional should be engaged to do the work.

Uncle Phil Says:

With Few Regrets

A moral victory is when you don't know when you're beaten, and the other fellow doesn't know it either.

Some people are born busybodies. They have an inferiority complex.

A thermometer ought to feel vain; it is consulted so often.

The man who talks bluntly often makes the most pointed remarks.

From Cynic's Dictionary

Wisdom is knowing what to do; skill is knowing how to do it; virtue is not doing it.

Why should fashion plates for men ever be printed? There isn't enough in them for the last 30 years to make it worth while.

If you really want to reform anyone, you must begin with his great grandfather.

Sad Conclusion

"Henry, honey, I'm to be in our club's amateur theatricals. What do you think people will say when they see me in tights?"
"They'll probably say I married you for your money."

Has Love No Feeling?

"You seem very quiet tonight, Roland," said the pretty girl. "Are—are you sure you love me?"
"Love you?" Roland exclaimed. "Good Heavens, Rhoda, when we were saying goodbye at the gate last night your dog bit a piece out of my leg, and I didn't even notice it till I got home!"

Judy, aged two and a half, had had a great deal of hard toast from babyhood on. Only a few times had she had fresh bread. At supper one evening she said: "Please, Mummy, may I have some bread without any noise in it?"

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

A single 10-ton ponton bridge eats up 3200 pounds of rubber and 2.01 pounds are used for each roll of adhesive plaster made for the Army's medical corps.

We've heard a lot about tire switching lately, but the practice would become more common if every driver realized that equalizing wear on all tires can increase tread mileage as much as 50%.

With conservation in mind keep your rubber goods in a cool, dark place, preferably away from direct heat, or exposure to sunlight, oil and grease.

To make the bullet-sealing gasoline tanks of a Flying Fortress requires 1650 pounds of rubber.

Parthenium Argentatum is what botanists call Guayule (pronounced Y-Yu-Lee) a scrubby desert shrub of Central America and Southwest U.S. which is being developed for its rubber content.

Aid to Enemy

"Any American who wilfully neglects to pay his taxes on time or to invest every cent he can in War Bonds is surely giving aid and comfort to the enemy. We have a job to do and we are all called for service to our country. Our dollars are called to service too. Let us all ask ourselves, 'Shall we be more tender with our dollars than with the lives of our sons?' — Secretary Morgenthau

BOOKLET FOR FAMILIES OF SERVICE MEN WARNS UNWISE NEWS SPREADING

"A Personal Message" to every serviceman's family is being distributed to homes in Maine, according to Col. F. H. Farnum, director of the Maine Office of Civilian Defense. The booklet, endorsed by the Army and Navy heads and also by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, has been entrusted to the local Civilian Defense Councils for distribution. It warns against loose talk that means "the difference between news of disaster and news of victory."

All booklets have been entrusted to the Civilian Defense Councils for distribution. So if you don't receive one, ask a friend to give you his; and if you have one, pass it on to your friends. The booklet stresses the fact that no one should talk about news received in personal letters unless such news has been officially reported in newspapers or over the radio.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Women at War today are saving for Women at Peace when the War is won. They are buying War Bonds; as thrifty housewives, saving to buy those handy, convenient and necessary electrical appliances when their Bonds mature.

Women know that money saved now will help win the peace, putting their menfolk to work in our domestic factories when the war is over. They know purchase of War Bonds today will help their family and the whole country tide over the readjustment period from War to Peace.

People's Responsibility

Eight billion dollars of the 13 billion dollars in this Second War Loan Drive must come from non-banking sources, so the responsibility for the bulk of this 13-billion-dollar drive rests with the American public. Indications are that Americans generally need only to be reminded of this responsibility and how much they should lend their government in order to reach this goal. Americans are backing up their fighting men on the battle fronts. They are supporting the Second War Loan. "They give their lives... You lend your money."

THE RANGER'S COLUMN

W. F. BOND

—Androscoggin District Ranger—
White Mountain National Forest

Word has been received from the Supervisor's Office of the appointment of Miss Frances Dillon of Melrose, Mass., as Lookout on Mill Mountain Tower. Women who have been appointed to Lookout positions on the Androscoggin District will attend a training school this week at Gale River C. C. Camp for the purpose of becoming acquainted with their duties and responsibilities to the State and Nation in the position which they are to fill.

Forest products and standing timber are among specific war materials included in recent Congressional amendments to the Federal Sabotage Act. Forest Supervisor Graham pointed out.

The Act which was passed in the first World War was amended in 1940. Language of the latest amendment includes by name certain articles considered to be "war material" and for willful destruction of which citizens can be severely punished by the Federal Government, in addition to any local prosecution. The new wording of the Act, approved Dec. 24, 1942, states that:

"War Materials", as used herein shall include arms, armament, ammunition, livestock, forage, forest products and standing timber suitable therefor, stores of clothing, food, foodstuffs or fuel; and shall also include supplies, munitions, and all other articles of whatever description and any part or ingredient thereof, intended for, adapted to, or suitable for the use of the United States or any associate nation, in connection with the conduct of the war.

It is not generally realized what an important part wood is playing in the war. Supervisor Graham pointed out. Wood for truck bodies, ships, barges, small patrol boats, training and cargo planes are only some of the better known uses. Billions of feet of wood go into cantonments, portable advance base huts and the crating of all types of instruments and munitions, from airplanes to direction finders, being sent to our armies and their allies. Wood cellulose is a base for some of our most powerful explosives.

The new act makes it a Federal crime to destroy this important forest resource and its products and exposes violators to heavy Federal wartime punishments in addition to punishments under State statutes and local ordinances. It applies on both public and private land.

The Act is directed at willful violations but might be construed to include cases involving gross or culpable carelessness in setting fire in forest areas. Both the State and Federal governments are engaged at this time in a nationwide forest fire prevention campaign intended to warn the public that carelessness with fire in the forest during war time helps the enemy and amounts to sabotage.

The recent snowstorm was a welcome relief to members of local fire fighting organizations. The fall varied on the Androscoggin District from a few inches in some places to as high as twenty-one inches in others. Skiers are taking advantage of excellent conditions to enjoy a final workout before spring finally makes it around the corner.
